ABOUT

The National Council’s mission is educational. It seeks to enhance American awareness, knowledge, and understanding of the Arab countries, the Mideast, and the Islamic world. Its means for doing so encompass but are not limited to programs for leadership development, people-to-people exchanges, lectures, publications, an annual Arab-U.S. policymakers conference, and the participation of American students and faculty in Arab world study experiences.

The National Council’s vision is a relationship between the United States and its Arab partners, friends, and allies that rests on as solid and enduring a foundation as possible. Such a foundation, viewed from both ends of the spectrum, is one that would be characterized by strengthened and expanded strategic, economic, political, commercial, and defense cooperation ties; increased joint ventures; a mutuality of benefit; reciprocal respect for each other’s heritage and values; and overall acceptance of each other’s legitimate needs, concerns, interests, and objectives.

Founded in 1983, the National Council on U.S.-Arab Relations is an American non-profit, non-governmental, educational organization dedicated to improving American knowledge and understanding of the Arab region.
2020 brought forth a host of new challenges and opportunities for the National Council on U.S.-Arab Relations as it pursued its educational mission to further knowledge and understanding of the Arab region, the Middle East, and the Islamic world.

While the COVID-19 pandemic ravaged the global community, with resultant havoc, death, and despair, America’s relationship with the Arab countries faced novel and familiar challenges. Despite life often seeming quite different due to public health circumstances, the bonds of friendship and partnership between the United States and its Arab friends, partners, and allies proved again to be strong.

For the National Council, there were many changes amidst constancies. While the location and format of many of the Council’s programs, projects, events, and activities may have often looked different in 2020, the Council’s underlying focus on education endured. Despite the challenges, the Council redoubled its efforts to continue the pursuit of a relationship between the American & Arab peoples based on enhanced cooperation, deepened understanding, and reciprocal respect.

Youth Leadership Development / Model Arab League Debate Forums were administered (some virtually) during the year by hosts in 13 U.S. cities.

The National Council’s Youth Leadership Development / Model Arab League Debate Forum Alumni grew to more than 51,000.
University students in the arts, humanities, and social sciences completed 10-week and semester-long virtual Arab-U.S. relations internships with organizations based in Washington, D.C.

The internships required that the students produce twice-weekly written analytical critiques of published works by scholars and other specialists on contemporary issues and challenges pertaining to Arabia, the Gulf, and the GCC experiment in sub-regional cooperation.

In addition, the interns were introduced to, briefed by, and provided the opportunity to converse with a dozen of the region’s foremost authors, diplomats, and other authorities on Arabia and the Gulf.

Simultaneously, the interns benefited from a full-time, real-life professional work experience. The experiences were provided by the National Council in association with one of its fellow NGOs active in America’s relationships with the 22 Arab countries, the Middle East, and the Islamic world.
The 29th Annual Arab-U.S. Policymakers Conference, The Next U.S. Presidency: Implications for the U.S.-Arab Relationship, was broadcast live online November 17-19, 2020. The proceedings featured 32 internationally renowned specialists analyzing, discussing, and debating issues of over-arching importance to the American and Arab people’s needs, concerns, interests, and key foreign policy objectives.
Audio and video recordings of sessions and speakers at the 29th Annual Arab-U.S. Policymakers Conference, along with other past Arab-U.S. Policymakers Conferences, are available on YouTube, Apple Podcasts, Spotify, the National Council’s website, and elsewhere online.

Despite international travel limited for much of 2020, 24 individuals participated in National Council Study Visits to the Arab Region.

In addition, 49 individuals completed follow-on activities from National Council Study Visits to the Arab Region in 2019.

National Council Study Visits to the Arab Region project participants into the dynamics of Arab-U.S. relations and provides first-hand exposure to the region’s considerable cultural, economic, political, and social diversity pursuant to increased knowledge and understanding.

Publications, articles, monographs, podcasts, & videos featuring hard-to-come-by analyses and perspectives on contemporary affairs and policies related to U.S.-Arab relations and the Arab world from Morocco to Muscat, Baghdad to Berbera, and Algiers to Aden, with Aleppo and Alexandria in between.

Lectures, seminars, briefings, interviews, roundtables, discussions, and other educational sessions convened by the National Council.
2020 marked the first full year that Ambassador (Ret.) Richard W. Murphy, one of America’s most accomplished Arabist statesmen, served as Co-Chair of the National Council’s International Advisory Committee.

The Board’s other Co-Chair is HRH Prince Abdulaziz Bin Talal Bin Abdulaziz Al Saud. In October 2020, HRH Prince Abdulaziz was appointed President of the Arab Gulf Programme for Development (sometimes better known by its acronym, “AGFUND”), where he succeeded the humanitarian organization's Founding President and his father HRH Prince Talal Bin Abdulaziz.
Work continued toward establishing the first-ever Arab Cultural Institute in the heart of the nation’s capital. The Institute will showcase the extraordinary and multifaceted range of Arab contributions to humanity, world civilization, and American civic culture.

GLOBAL CULTURAL LEADERSHIP AWARD

On January 24, the National Council presented its first-ever GLOBAL CULTURAL LEADERSHIP AWARD to Monsieur Dr. Jack Lang, President of the Institut du Monde Arabe (IMA) in Paris, France. The Award was bestowed in recognition of Monsieur Lang’s achievements in expanding knowledge of the Arab region and promoting cross-cultural understanding.

The fortified village of Al-Hajjarah, approximately 40 miles southwest of Sana’a, sits nestled among the clouds 2,200 meters high atop a peak in the Jabal Haraz. Established in the 12th century by the Sulayhid dynasty, it is among the best examples of mountain architecture in Yemen, with houses erected directly on the rocks without foundations. Homes in the mountain-top villages of the Jabal Haraz are built with sandstone or basalt. In many places the buildings are so integrated into the landscape that it is difficult to tell where the rock ends and the village begins. The hillsides surrounding the villages contain terraced fields growing alfalfa, millet, lentils, coffee, and qat. Photo by Dr. John Duke Anthony, 1997.

Among the most distinctive decorative features of Yemeni architecture is the qamaria, the multicolored stained-glass windows that grace some of Yemen’s buildings. The qamaria, which comes from the word qamar, meaning moon, is said to let light reminiscent of the moon’s beauty into the house. These intricately and ornately shaped and colored windows are both functional and aesthetically pleasing. Their carved shapes add color and charm to a home, and they help illuminate the inside without exposing it to direct sunlight. There are more than 150 traditional Yemeni qamaria patterns, with the most popular styles being Rommani, Yagoti, and Zanjery. Photos by Dr. John Duke Anthony.

The Mosque of Ahmad Ibn Tulun in the present day Sayyida Zaynab district of Cairo is one of the Islamic world’s most famous. It is the only remaining monument from the City of Qata’i, which was established in 870 as the capital of the Tulunid state in Egypt. The mosque underwent restorations in 1077, 1296, and, most recently, 2004. The Egyptian capital’s oldest and largest mosque lies within what is today referred to as “Historic Cairo.” The area was added to the UNESCO World Heritage List in 1979. Photo by National Council on U.S.-Arab Relations, 2005.

The city of Shibam, rising out of the cliff edge of Wadi Hadramaut and nicknamed “the Manhattan of the desert,” is one of the oldest and best examples of urban planning based on multistoried construction. The 16th-century metropolis consists of sun-dried brick houses made from mixtures of soil, hay, and water, towering up to seven stories high. Shibam sits on an important caravan stop on the spice and incense route across the Southern Arabian plateau. Photo by Dr. John Duke Anthony, 2008.
